

For publication in one of the Frankfurt Book Fair 2008 Bookseller Daily editions.

Eurospan signs distribution agreement with American Mathematical Society

Eurospan has confirmed its claim to be the fastest-growing independent sales, marketing and distribution company in Europe by signing up the prestigious maths publisher, American Mathematical Society. The new contract was activated on October 1st. This is the fourteenth new signing by Eurospan this year, and the largest. As a professional society of mathematicians, AMS publishes books and journals for the advancement of science and mathematics, and is now one of the world's leading publishers of mathematical literature. Its publications were previously distributed in Europe by Oxford University Press, and it has a large market outside the USA. Beth Huber, AMS's Associate Executive Director, Publishing, wants to make that market grow, and said, "We are excited about working with Eurospan as they have an excellent reputation for increasing the sales in their territories for their client publishers' titles." This excitement was echoed by Stephen Lustig, Sales and Marketing Director of Eurospan, who said, "Signing up AMS is a real feather in Eurospan's cap. We are confident that the combination of its excellent publications with Eurospan's proven marketing and sales expertise will deliver to AMS the growth they are looking for."

About Eurospan Group

Eurospan provides a one-stop marketing, sales and distribution service to markets in Europe, Middle East and Africa for publishers from four continents - North America, Africa, Asia and Australasia. Eurospan's Scientific & Technical division, one of five specialist divisions, was created four years ago, and distributes titles from many leading publishers and professional societies, including American Society of Civil Engineers, PennWell, ISA, Society of Manufacturing Engineers and American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Media Contact

Stephen Lustig ; Sales and Marketing Director, Eurospan Group

Stephen.lustig@eurospangroup.com

Tel: 020 7845 0804